The 18,000-square foot addition was made possible in part through Johnson Foundation and Gulf Coast Medical Foundation funding.

A TIME OF Achievement Improved Facilities and Reaccreditation

In June, the college received notification of its reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC).

From completing new building additions to achieving reaffirmation on accreditation from the Southern Association of College and Schools, 2018-19 was a busy and successful year for Wharton County Junior College. We believe such achievements are the key to providing students the resources needed to reach academic goals.

We take our role in the community very seriously and continually look for ways to improve what we do and how we do it. We want our students to be able to achieve their goals in the most efficient and beneficial way possible.

In February, the college celebrated the completion of a major project at the Johnson Health Occupations Center. The $6.5 million project included the construction of an 18,000-square foot addition and the renovation of the existing 34,000-square-foot structure. The project was made possible in part through Johnson Foundation and Gulf Coast Medical Foundation funding.

In April, WCJC officially dedicated the Gene Bahnsen Gymnasium, located on the Wharton campus. The gym was named in honor of longtime Athletic Director and Coach Gene Bahnsen, who came to the college in 1959 and spent 60 years coaching everything from track and field to football and tennis. Bahnsen was named athletic director in 1965 and has held that post ever since.

In June, the college received notification of its reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC). This important milestone ensures that the college is compliant with high-level standards and that the degrees and course credits awarded by the college are viable and worthy of transfer to institutions of higher learning.

The college also began construction on a new baseball park on the northeast side of the Wharton campus. Thanks to a generous donation from Houston resident Duncan Corbett, the $1.7 million facility – Corbett Park – will be home to Pioneers baseball games for years to come.

Security upgrades were also initiated as part of a massive, system-wide effort to improve safety at our Wharton, Richmond and Bay City campuses.

Beyond these major milestones, WCJC counts the academic and career success of every student as our most enduring accomplishment. We look forward to continuing our proud tradition of achievement and excellence in the future.

Sincerely,

Betty A. McCrohan
President, Wharton County Junior College

OUTSTANDING MUSICIANS

Four students were selected for All-State honors

One band member and three choir members earned places in the Texas Two-Year College All-State Band and All-State Choir.

Angel Ramos from Orchard was recognized by the All-State Band. Choir members selected for the All-State Choir were Alexis Nieves of Rosenberg, Nicholas Paoletti of Richmond and Catching Valentinis-Dee of Katy.

LONG-RANGE VISION

College-wide growth was focus of Board Planning Retreat

At a retreat in early 2019, the Wharton County Junior College Board of Trustees developed a Strategic Planning Vision and established priorities for the next five to 10 years.

The vision statement developed by the board says that the college “will meet the demand for quality academic-transfer instruction, high-impact vocational training and exceptional student support across all counties within our rapidly expanding service area, while preserving our commitment to the original vision of the institution as a rural-serving college.”

The board noted that the college’s employees deserved recognition for helping the college maintain high levels of service while serving the area’s residents.

“We thank our employees for the value they bring to the community, our students and the reputation of the college,” said Danny Gertson, board chairman.

Gertson further credited WCJC President Betty McCrohan as being instrumental in charting a successful course for the college. McCrohan’s leadership has led to the completion of several significant projects, including the renovation and expansion of the Johnson Health Occupations Center on the Wharton campus, the expansion of the Richmond campus and the construction of a new ballpark on the Wharton campus.

Priorities set by the board for each campus included the following:

- Wharton: Continue to enhance student support through the construction of a new Student Welcome Center.
- Richmond: Develop a state-of-the-art Center for Allied Health and expand vocational program offerings.
- Sugar Land: Secure a WCJC building on the existing University of Houston Sugar Land campus as a means of expanding university-parallel programmatic offerings.
- Bay City: Explore the potential for additional industry partners in Matagorda and the surrounding areas.

TO THE STARS AND BEYOND

WCJC student visited NASA as part of on-site experience

Duaa Qamar, a student at Wharton County Junior College’s Sugar Land campus, was selected to travel to NASA’s Kennedy Space Center to participate in the NASA Community College Aerospace Scholars (NCAS) on-site experience. Qamar was one of 403 community college students from across the United States selected for the program.

The summer program included a five-week online segment and a four-day on-site event at Kennedy Space Center in Florida. The on-site portion enabled students to interact with NASA engineers and others as they learned more about careers in science and engineering. During their time at NASA, students formed teams and established fictional companies interested in Mars exploration. Each team was responsible for developing and testing a prototype rover, forming a company infrastructure, managing a budget and developing communications and outreach.

GAME CHANGER

New ballpark named for the man who made it possible

It's out with the old, in with the new for the Wharton County Junior College Pioneers baseball team.

Thanks to a generous donation from Houston resident and local landowner Duncan Corbett, the college broke ground on a new ballpark during the year. The $1.7 million project includes a new field, underground irrigation system, dugouts, lighting, air-conditioned press box, batting cage, scoreboard and bleachers for more than 440 spectators.

WCJC Baseball Coach Keith Case said the project is a dream-come-true for his team. "It's a very positive improvement for the baseball program as well as our college and the fans from the surrounding area. It's going to be a game changer for us."

"We are very appreciative to Mr. Corbett, WCJC President Betty McCrohan, the WCJC Board of Trustees and the college's staff for stepping up to the plate and hitting a grand slam," he said. "This ballpark will serve as a legacy for the Corbett family for generations to come."

A WRAP ON THE HEALTH CENTER PROJECT

Celebration for the renovated and expanded Johnson Building

Wharton County Junior College officially celebrated the completion of a large-scale renovation project that has transformed the Johnson Health Occupations Center. A formal ribbon-cutting in March included an audience of about 200 employees, students, community members and dignitaries.

The $6.5 million project included the construction of a new 18,000-square-foot addition on the facility's north side in addition to major renovations for the existing 34,000-square-foot building.

The project enables the college to offer cutting-edge training needed for successful employment in the competitive healthcare field. The Johnson Health Occupations Center contains the bulk of the college's Allied Health programs, including Associate Degree Nursing, Dental Hygiene, Health Information Technology, Human Services, Physical Therapist Assistant, Radiologic Technology, Vocational Nursing and Pre-baccalaureate Nursing. In addition, the Emergency Medical Services program was relocated to the facility.

"We could not be more excited about the completion of this beautiful, state-of-the-art facility," said WCJC President Betty McCrohan. "Through this project, we will continue to be able to provide our students with the skills and education needed for employment in the competitive healthcare industry."

McCrohan credited the Johnson Foundation and Gulf Coast Medical Foundation for providing funding. "They made all of this happen through their generous support," she said.

New facility named in honor of longtime athletic director and coach

More than 250 friends, family, students, co-workers and former athletes gathered on Wharton County Junior College's Wharton campus in April for the dedication of the Gene Bahnsen Gymnasium, named in honor of longtime Athletic Director and Coach Gene Bahnsen.

The gym was transformed into a reception hall accented with displays of vintage photographs chronicling Bahnsen's 60-year career, antique jerseys and equipment and trophies won by the teams he coached or oversaw during his tenure at WCJC. The highlight of the event was the unveiling of a plaque and photograph of Bahnsen that will be permanently installed in the facility.

"Coach Bahnsen has been there for all of us and coached some excellent teams. He was totally loyal and dedicated," said WCJC President Betty McCrohan, who assisted with the unveiling. Looking around at the crowded gym, she added, "This room is full of love for you."

"I cannot express the feelings I have," Bahnsen said. "We've had tremendous athletes and tremendous students and tremendous ex-students and I'm so happy to see them coming back. I appreciate all of this."

Bahnsen arrived at WCJC in 1959, after a three-year stint as a lieutenant with the United States Air Force. Initially hired as a basketball coach, assistant football coach and physical education instructor, Bahnsen went on to coach track and field and tennis and oversee the athletic dormitory. He was named athletic director in 1965. The National Junior College Athletic Association's Men's Basketball Coaches Association named him to its Hall of Fame in 2012.

Two of Bahnsen's former players shared remarks during the gymnasium naming ceremony. Will Parker, who played 11 seasons in the National Football League and was WCJC football's Most Valuable Player in 1968, noted that Bahnsen became something of a "big brother" through his leadership and guidance. "He's been instrumental in my life."

Danny Hauser, the Most Valuable Player on the 1969 basketball team played at the University of Houston before pursuing a career as a banker. He described his former coach as determined, competitive, smart and cunning. Hauser said his time at WCJC set the tone for the remainder of his life. "I owe this school and this man everything."

Hauser also announced the formation of the Gene Bahnsen Endowed Scholarship that will provide financial assistance to future WCJC students. Hauser, who originated the concept of the scholarship, established the fund with its initial $10,000 contribution.

FAREWELL TO THE CLASS OF 2019

Commencement ceremonies honored 269 new graduates

Wharton County Junior College held its 73rd Annual Commencement Exercises in May for graduates receiving either an associate of arts degree, an associate of applied science degree or the associate of arts in teaching degree. In total, 269 graduates participated in two separate ceremonies held at the Wharton campus. Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts Glenn Hegar was the commencement speaker for both ceremonies.

Two high school students – Adrian Mora and Ja’Lea Quintero-Brooks – participated in the morning ceremony as part of the Realizing Our Academic Reward (ROAR) Academy, a collaboration between WCJC and Wharton ISD that enables a select group of students to earn as many as 60 college-level credit hours while still in high school. Both students completed enough credit hours to earn their associate degree.

Among WCJC students and faculty recognized during the event was Elena Perez of Eagle Lake, winner of the President’s Award. Perez, Makayla Hobbs of Boling, Amnah Minhas of Sugar Land and Binh Thai Nguyen of Palacios received High Grade Point Average Awards.

Kasey Guardado of Needville won the Outstanding Services Award, recognizing a student who best exemplifies the spirit of service to the college and the community.

Speech Instructor Jim Bob Conner was presented with an Award of Teaching Excellence.

NISOD EXCELLENCE AWARDS RECIPIENTS

Instructors cited for commitment and contributions

Nine Wharton County Junior College instructors were recognized for their dedication and commitment to their fields of study by the National Institute of Staff and Organizational Development with NISOD Excellence Awards for 2018-2019. The nine were presented with pewter medallions at the International Conference on Teaching and Leadership Excellence held in May 2019 in Austin.

“I want to congratulate these instructors on their achievement,” said WCJC President Betty McCrohan. “They have gone the extra mile to provide their students with the education and resources needed to be successful.”

The honorees were:

- Jim Bob Conner – Speech
- Kenneth Grubb – History
- Ava Humme – English
- Pat Korenek – Nursing
- Stephen Lyford – Computer Science
- Kim Raun – Biology
- Tracey Simmons-Willis – Chemistry
- Grady Smith – Law Enforcement
- Paul Spellman – History

WCJC's Waldrop named to online community college list

Wharton County Junior College Band Instructor Joe Waldrop was named to the "Who's Who in Community College Academia" list.

Compiled by Academic Keys, an online publication that provides higher education resources, the list singles out "outstanding faculty and administrators in higher education" from across the country. A member of WCJC's faculty for the past 15 years, Waldrop previously taught music at the high school level as well as in church.

"It is always an honor to be recognized in your life's field of work," Waldrop said. "It's a great thrill to share something you love to do with others and to, hopefully, light a spark in them that they will pass on down the road."

Waldrop, who grew up in East Texas, was influenced by a musical family. He has been nominated twice for a Grammy in Music Education and selected as a member of the "Who's Who in Music Education."

FIELD OF HONOR

WCJC recognized student athletes at annual event

Wharton County Junior College's student athletes were honored for success in competition and in the classroom during the 56th Annual Athletic Banquet at the Pioneer Student Center on the Wharton campus. Athletes from the baseball, volleyball and rodeo teams were introduced and recognized for both athletic and educational achievements.

Baseball player Brock Brandl of El Campo won the 2019 Johnnie Frankie Award. Established in honor of the late WCJC coach and presented by his daughter, Jenny Banker, the award is reserved for WCJC athletes who embody high character and singular abilities.

The Dr. Ty Pate Academic Award, established in memory of the late WCJC administrator and former athlete, went to rodeo team member Kirby Evelo of Boling. Leigh Ann Collins, WCJC's vice president of instruction, presented the award, noting that Evelo, who earned a 3.59 grade point average, will continue her education at Texas A&M.

The volleyball team's Most Valuable Player award went to Needville resident Olivia Aprea, a past Johnnie Frankie Award winner. The rodeo team MVP went to Kolton Mazoch of El Campo.

Academic All-Conference Awards were presented to students who had at least a 3.25 GPA, had been enrolled at the college for at least three semesters and had taken at least 36 hours of course work.

Winners were:

- Grant Griffin (baseball), Richmond
- Jason Jaekel (baseball), League City
- Ryan Jennings (baseball), New Braunfels
- Caleb Maly (baseball), Pearland
- Sabrina Show (volleyball), East Bernard

TEE TIME

6th Annual golf tournament netted funds for WCJC Foundation scholarships

Foundation officers included President Gordon Sorrel of El Campo, Vice President Suzanne Armour of Wharton and Treasurer Johnny Veselka of El Campo. Board members were Melba Clapp of El Campo, Landon McClain of Wharton, Gus Mullins of Boling, Vince Reina Jr. of Wharton, Lloyd Nelson of Louise, Dr. Stewart Morris of Houston, WCJC Board Trustee Amy Rod of El Campo and WCJC President Betty McCrohan.

"SO OTHERS MAY LIVE"

History instructor publishes first novel

Wharton County Junior College History Instructor Brady Lee Hutchison had three goals when he was a youngster growing up in Port Arthur: become a firefighter, obtain a history degree and write a book.

He checked off the first two objectives earlier in life during a decade as a firefighter and arson investigator while simultaneously obtaining a master's degree in history. He has taught history at WCJC since 2013, first in a part-time capacity and now as a full-time instructor.

Hutchison's accomplished his third goal of writing a book with the publication of his first novel, "So Others May Live," under the pen name of Lee Hutch. Set in World War II, the book covers a topic Hutchison knows well – firefighting.

"My academic interest, as a historian, concerns the challenges faced by fire departments in coping with wartime conditions," Hutchison explained. "What eventually became a novel actually started as research I conducted while getting my master's degree. As time passed, I realized a more effective way to tell the story would be through fiction."

"So Others May Live" presents a unique viewpoint of the Second World War as it follows the lives of both a British bomber pilot as well as a German firefighter who is tasked with keeping Berlin from burning to the ground during the nightly Allied bombing raids.

WCJC events recognize lawmakers for support of education

In October, Wharton County Junior College thanked elected officials for their support of higher education at two special receptions at the Richmond and Bay City Campuses. Local officials and representatives for the area's congressmen and state legislators shared brief remarks detailing the importance of education and the role that WCJC has played in enhancing the workforce and economy.

nation to find Human Services programs that we are excited to list as the best of the best," said Kelly Simpson, HumanServicesEDU.org's managing editor. "We created this list to help potential students find objective information about each program and bring recognition to top-quality programs."

WCJC's program was singled out for providing "outstanding" services like online and face-to-face tutoring, a 96 percent student retention rate, a 100 percent graduate success rate and an affordable cost.

Wharton County Junior College's Human Services Program was recognized as one of the top two-year programs in the nation.

HumanServicesEDU.org, an on-line resource for those interested in pursuing education and careers in the Human Services field, listed WCJC's program as one of the Top 10 schools in the nation for obtaining a high-quality and cost-affordable associate degree in human services.

Victoria Schultz, director of WCJC's Human Services Program, said the program is the only one in Texas to be nationally accredited through the Council for the Standards of Human Service Education. According to the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, WCJC's Human Services Program has a 100 percent employment rate within two years of graduation – a feat many other community colleges in the state have been unable to match.

WCJC Foundation awarded 12 scholarships for 2019

The Wharton County Junior College Foundation awarded 12 scholarships to provide financial assistance for students who might otherwise be unable to afford higher education.

The students, who are from the Wharton, Boling, East Bernard, Needville, El Campo and Louise school districts, each received a $4,000 scholarship. They are:

- Boling High School: Ernest Calhoun and Stephanie Garcia
- East Bernard High School: Arli Hercules and Madelin Perez
- El Campo High School: Da'Veijan Melendez and Jacquelyn Mijares

- Louise High School: Kyli Kostelnik
- Needville High School: Wesley Gaubatz and Taylor Amos
- Wharton High School: Michaela Guevara, Nathan Gurecky and Ybette Vazquez

To qualify for the scholarships, applicants were required to have graduated in 2019 from one of the six schools in the college's service area. They also submitted a scholarship application and essay. Priority was given to students who demonstrated how a scholarship would enable them to overcome limited resources and financial constraints in order to attend WCJC.

Grant Funding

2018-2019

WCJC received grants from foundations, governmental agencies, and individuals totaling approximately $3,508,735 for the year ending August 31, 2019. These awards are used to support WCJC's academic and vocational training programs as well as for financial support for students.
